

The Equality Act 2010 & Employee Health in the Workplace Implications for Churches & Mission Organisations

Seminar in partnership with Christian Distinctives
Friday 1st October 2010, 2-4pm

As part of our Small Changes, Big Rewards seminar programme, join our Occupational Health Team for an informative seminar to learn more about the implications of the Equality Act 2010 for your organisation.

Learning outcomes

This seminar will:

- give you information about discrimination with regard to health.
- help you to understand the implications of the Equality Act 2010 with regard to pre-employment screening.
- help you to understand the implications of the Equality Act 2010 with regard to managing health and disability.

We will provide information that will outline the changes to legislation prompted by the Equality Act 2010 and we'll be able to discuss the way forward for your organisation.

Who is this for?

HR and line managers, and any managers with responsibility for recruitment or policy making in relation to disabled employees.

With the Equality Act 2010 taking effect in October 2010, employers will need to carefully review their policies and procedures for disabled employees and prospective recruits who may have a disability. It will bring together all legislation regarding discrimination under one piece of UK law including discrimination with regard to health, previously covered under the Disability Discrimination Act.

About Christian Distinctives

The Christian Distinctives Trust (CDT) is part of a wide community of likeminded people who are passionate to see excellence inside Christian organisations. We want Christian organisations to be more spiritually passionate, professionally excellent and distinctively Christian.
